Who here remembers what I do for work?

Who here has a dog or a cat right now, or you did when you were growing up?

Keep your hand up if you consider that pet one of your all time best friends and ultimate secret and feelings keeper and source of unlimited unconditional love.

It is no wonder that Mark Twain felt the way he did. This, and all other images are from Google Images, which I accessed on November 2, 19.

A couple weeks ago, Kyle told us about how we can find the perfect pet for our needs, and now I'm going to talk about what to do now that you've chosen that pet. Primarily I will be talking about what to do if you've chosen a cat or dog, because I mainly work with cats and dogs and occasionally get to see other critters if I happen to be working with a particular vet. However, much of this advice can be applied to any animal that you decide upon. I have learned a lot in the last few years working for a veterinarian, and I would like to pass along a few of the things that I have learned so that you can become a more responsible pet owner. I think we can all agree that we want our pets to live a long, happy and healthy life, and none of us want to see millions of animals euthanized each year due to overcrowded shelters. I'm going to show you a couple of things you can do to be a more responsible pet owner, beginning with where you get your pet, why you should spay or neuter that pet, and if I have time I'd like to tell you how you can prevent heartworm, which is a parasitic worm invasion of your dog's heart that is lethal.

Where to get a cat or dog

Throughout my research for this speech, if you go to any website about the pet overpopulation, backyard breeders and puppy mills are always listed as the top contributors to the overrun shelters. And because there are so many breed-specific rescue organizations, you do not necessarily need to seek out a reputable breeder either, as your pet may already be waiting for you to find them. Let me tell you where to avoid getting a pet, and suggest some alternatives that will help save a life.

Backyard Breeders

Backyard breeders are those who breed two dogs together for reasons that are generally based on looks and with intent to make money. For example, have you heard of designer breeds, such as the Labradoodle or Puggle? I have a feeling that this wasn't the Humane Society's idea. The demand for these hybrid breeds, or the demand for the newest trend in breed is resulting in more and more dogs in the shelters. Many backyard breeders are not bad people; they just do not know how much that they are actually contributing to the problem of our overrun shelters.

Rodeo animals speak essay by Destiny
You say you love and care for animals... So let me ask you this... why do you keep beating me? Why do I keep getting shocked? Will I ever get help? What did I do to deserve this? Why do they keep checking me? Will I live another day?

As alot of you may not know that thousands of rodeo animals including calves, steers, horses and bulls are brutally killed in rodeos every year and half the time are badly injured receiving no medical attention. STEER roping is the most deadly event in the rodeo world because the steers get trapped, some falling away from 100 pound lasso constraints. Also since roping horns are trained to buck up once they start is caught often times they are choked to death as well. Not only does that happen but also they're thrown to the ground with their legs tied together sometimes breaking the steers horns and/or legs. This also happens in calf roping as well. Born to buck? This is what many so called "cowboys" would say about bucking horses and bulls. Well then if they were born to buck, then why do they use prod wires, spikes and spurs on them? Truth is if these horses and bulls were "Born to buck" they would never have to use these painful tools on them. They want to make the animal appear wild and mean to the crowd when they are just
