Kiwi crate reviews 2020

Interested in KiwiCo reviews — or maybe specifically a Kiwi Crate review (since that’s the most popular box)? If you’re interested in trying a KiwiCo box for your kids, check out my completely honest thoughts below! And be sure to scroll to the bottom to get a promo code for 40% off your first box! (Looking for more unique non-toy gifts for kids? Be sure to also check out our recommendations for the top 10 subscription boxes for kids, top 8 subscription boxes for toddlers, and top 13 magazine subscriptions for kids.) What is KiwiCo (formerly Kiwi Crate)? If you’re looking for some really unique ways to keep your kids entertained, I highly recommend KiwiCo! In case you’ve never heard of KiwiCo, it used to be called Kiwi Crate but after expanding and adding on so many different types of boxes, they rebranded to be called KiwiCo. KiwiCo is a monthly subscription service that offers kid’s educational projects, crafts, and activities on different themes. You can get a subscription for as low as $16.95 per month — including shipping. Each box includes all the materials to make a fun hands-on project (or 2-3 simpler projects, depending on the box!). What age range is it for? The original Kiwi Crate was designed for kids ages 5-8, but they’ve now added on so many different options! KiwiCo offers monthly crate subscriptions for various ages: Tadpole Crate for ages 0-3 years (Explore & Discover) Koala Crate for ages 3-4 (Play & Learn) Kiwi Crate for ages 5-8 (Science, Art, & More) Atlas Crate for ages 6-11 (Geography & Culture) Doodle Crate for ages 9-16+ (Art & Design) Tinker Crate for ages 9-16+ (Science & Engineering) Eureka Crate for ages 14-104 (Engineering & Design) The two most popular crates (at least in our house!) seem to be Kiwi Crate and Tinker Crate, but I love that they have choices for different ages and preferences! My Honest KiwiCo Review If you’re looking for completely honest Kiwi Crate reviews, I’m here to tell you that my kids have been using KiwiCo for years and absolutely LOVE it. They received it as a gift one year and loved it so much that they continued requesting it as a gift each year after that! I have fond memories of them running to the mailbox in excitement and anticipation to see what would be in this month’s Kiwi Crate box. I still remember how much Silas loved the very first Kiwi Crate box we received in the mail! He made a glow worm from a sock and named it “Billy Butler” after one of his favorite Royal’s baseball players. Since we’re a family that has never had a lot of toys, the KiwiCo boxes have been a great fit for us. It’s really nice that they’re mostly consumable and don’t contribute to toy clutter around the house. I also really love how hands-on, educational, unique, and entertaining they are. And they always have really great instructions for kids (and parents) to follow. Even as they’ve gotten older, they still really enjoy getting the boxes in the mail. (And I love that KiwiCo has now added on some really cool boxes for older kids!) In fact, we recently received a Kiwi Crate and Tinker Crate in the mail and ended up taking it with us on our family vacation in Utah. Our nieces and nephews loved working on the projects together and all gave it a thumbs up! (How’s that for an honest Kiwi Crate review? ☺) It was so much fun and such a great way for them to all do a hands-on activity together! How much does Kiwi Crate cost? The one negative thing I have to say about KiwiCo is the cost. (But be sure to scroll down for a coupon code to save on your first box!) While my kids have absolutely loved their Kiwi Crate boxes, we’ve always received them as gifts from grandparents. And I do think that they’re a little bit on the expensive side — especially if you’re on a tight budget. Most of the boxes cost $19.95 per month and you can get them for as low as $16.95 per month if you buy an entire annual subscription at once. (The Eureka box costs even more at $29.95 per month or $24.95 per month if you purchase an annual subscription.) This is why I think a KiwiCo subscription is a GREAT idea for grandparents as birthday or Christmas gifts! And you can purchase different lengths of subscriptions, depending on your budget — one month, three months, six months, or an entire year. Save 40% off your first KiwiCo box! If this honest KiwiCo review made you interested to try it, I’ve got a great deal for you! You can get 40% off your first box as a MoneySavingMom.com reader when you shop through this link. That makes your first box just $11.97 shipped. And there’s no obligation to continue with your subscription after your first box. Just log in to your account and cancel your subscription before it renews at the regular price. This is a great way to try KiwiCo at a discounted price and see if your kids like it! Have you tried Kiwi Crate before? If so, what was your experience? Related Links: If you are looking for a monthly subscription box that’s geared towards kids, then you have come to the right place. KiwiCo reviews suggest that this is the quintessential subscription box for children, especially for those who love science. For those of you who do not know, KiwiCo is a monthly subscription box that caters to children that love to create their own unique science and art projects. If your kid is interested in STEM-based projects, then KiwiCo could be a dream come true. Still not sure? This KiwiCo review will help you figure out if this is the perfect gift for your kid. How KiwiCo Works KiwiCo is a subscription-based service that allows your kids to get a box (crate) every month, filled with items and tools to create a STEM-based, arts, or geography and culture project in the comfort of their home. Once you sign up for the service, you will be charged for the box or crate that you receive in the mail every month. KiwiCo reviews from 2020 praise this as one of the best options available for STEM-based science projects for kids of all ages. Shipping and Packaging KiwiCo’s monthly subscription crates are shipped to numerous countries. Shipping is free within the US, otherwise, the price depends on your location. KiwiCo’s tinker crates come in customized packaging and are shipped within 1 to 2 business days of placing the order and we all know how important that is. International subscribers can expect to receive their package within 7 to 14 days. Verified KiwiCo BBB reviews confirm that the subscription boxes are affordable. A monthly or a three-month subscription will cost you $19.95/month If you opt for a 6-month subscription, the KiwiCo box pricing will come in at $18.50/month 12-month subscription -16.95/month Saving Opportunities Members who opt for a 3, 6, or 12-month subscription will get to receive a discount on the crate price. The amount of savings will mainly depend on the type of crate and where it is being shipped. Through their affiliate program, you can also receive some cool perks while you promote the KiwiCo subscription crates. The subscription plans can also be much more affordable if you get a zero annual fee credit card or a no-interest credit card. How to Manage Your Kiwico Subscription KiwiCo reviews and our research confirm that you can pause your subscription, or skip a month by simply going to your My Account page and clicking on subscriptions. Choose Edit and then ‘Pause Subscription’. You will then not be charged while your subscription is on hold. You can change your subscription type by going on My Account and choosing the KiwiCo box you want. You will then be charged for the price of the subscription box you receive. Members can cancel their monthly or auto-renewing subscriptions at any time. But this should be after the initial prepaid period of 1 month or 3 months, etc. All cancellations should be made by 11:59 PM PT on the day before your renewal date if you do not want to be billed for the month. Customer Service The brand’s customer service enjoys mostly positive KiwiCo box reviews and for a good reason. Members can reach KiwiCo support staff via live chat or email. If you send them an email [email protected], you can expect a reply within 2 days. Pros Cons A monthly subscription means your kids always have something to do Can be messy Every crate comes with the essentials for a kid’s science project Automatic renewal may be a turn-off for some Kids can get to work on a large array of projects The perfect learning experience KiwiCo Reviews and Testimonials Kiwi crate reviews are consistently positive, with many parents noting their children show interest in the various items in each customized crate. From what we can see when we browse through reviews of KiwiCo projects, children show a lot of interest in the STEM-related items in particular, with Kiwi art kits reviews harder to come by. Members meanwhile praise the great customer support and aftersales services support. KiwiCo subscription reviews further show that parents also appreciate that they can change their subscriptions to keep things interesting for their children. How Does It Compare? — KiwiCo Alternatives The following are some alternatives to KiwiCo that you can choose for your kids. LittlePassports A KiwiCo vs LittlePassports comparison shows that the former is more geared towards science-oriented kids with their STEM-focused projects in every subscription box. This means that KiwiCo is the go-to choice for children interested in hands-on projects. Little Passports’ subscription boxes meanwhile have more to do with workbook-related activities. Tinker Crate If you want to keep your kids busy for hours, then the Tinker Crate is a great option. It has been designed for kids aged 9-16, so it’s a smart choice if your offspring falls in that age group. Just like KiwiCo, Tinker Crate also brings lots of hands-on fun for your kids in the comfort of their home. In a KiwiCo vs Tinker Crate price comparison, however, the former wins by being more affordable. Is KiwiCo Worth It? — The Verdict Our honest KiwiCo review has concluded that the main reason to sign up for the service is the new and exciting science projects that your kids can create safely in their homes. It’s great for getting your kids interested in science or complementing their STEM education with some hands-on excitement as they tinker around with the items that are included in each of the subscription boxes. The multiple positive KiwiCo reviews further confirm that the company offers many amazing items in each monthly subscription box that bring something new to the table for your children to create and enjoy, and most important of all — learn. kiwi crate reviews. is kiwi crate worth it
